"The postmaster said, by the way of a joke—

"Is it a business or a love letter that you expect?"

"The girl faltered.

"A business letter."

"Well, there's nothing here," said the man.

"The girl hesitated. Then, blushing, as red as a rose, she said:

ASSAILANT CAPTURED.

Man Who Shot Joseph Manning Found Yesterday Afternoon.

Name Is Henry Ladue and He Says That Manning Called Him Vile Names, without Any Provocation.

The mystery surrounding the shooting of Joseph Manning Tuesday night was cleared up yesterday as to the identity of the assailant but the motive for the deed of violence is still somewhat of a conjecture. Chief Russell, working upon clues furnished by Manning and by others, located one Henry Ladue at work in the sand bank near Crane's plant and, after at first protesting his innocence, Ladue admitted to the chief that he shot Manning.

His version of the affair differs from that of Manning himself and of Mrs. Guyette. Both Manning and Ladue say that they were mutual strangers; but Ladue says that Tuesday evening, without provocation, in the vicinity previously mentioned, the corner of South Champlain and Main, Manning started towards him, at the same time calling him vile names. This caused him to shoot. After the shooting, Ladue says he ran to his room at George Thornhill's, 162 South Champlain street, only a short distance away.

The capture yesterday was made at the sand pit shortly before one o'clock in the afternoon. Ladue was employed drawing sand from the pit to E. E. Moore's concrete works. He had eaten his dinner and was about to take up his afternoon work.

After his arrest he gave up his keys to the police and a search of his room at Thornhill's revealed a derby hat, an umbrella and a raincoat, similar to those described by Mrs. Guyette. In his trunk was found a 38-caliber, five chamber revolver with one empty chamber. A box of 38-caliber bullets was also found.

Ladue is 47 years of age and came here in August from Fitchburg, Mass., having previously made his home here at different times. He married a Miss Sears, once of Starksboro, but the couple subsequently separated. Ladue has numerous brothers and sisters in various parts of the country.

At the Mary Fletcher hospital yesterday afternoon, Manning was reported to be doing well. The bullet was extracted from his body yesterday morning. It passed through the abdomen and was removed from his back, having taken such a direction that it did not come in contact with any of the vital organs. It was stated from the hospital that the results from the wound could not yet be determined. The bullet, a 38-caliber one, has been turned over to the chief of police.

At the Northfield students' conference this summer Mr. Peter conferred with Messrs. Northrup, Crampton, Cook and Hardy, members of the association, regarding the college work.
